Notes from ELECTRI INTERNATIONAL—The Foundation for Electrical Construction Inc. and THE ELECTRI Council

Zwicker Electric Invests $100,000 in Foundation

“This Spring, we celebrate our 60th anniversary and re-confirm our commitment to advancing our industry in New York City,” said David Pinter, President, Zwicker Electric Company and one of the ELECTRI International’s new $100,000 Founder Level Members.

Zwicker Electric is one of New York’s leading electrical contractors serving many of the city’s leading building owners, developers and construction companies. Founded in 1947, the company includes two generations of the Pinter family and has consistently applied a model management style to its operations.

“Over the past six decades, we have created a management and engineering infrastructure to complete the very specialized work our firm is doing today and will continue to do in the future,” explains Pinter. Zwicker’s recent role at 7 World Trade Center, Bank of America at Bryant Park, AOL Time Warner Building, 200 Chambers Street and the many signature corporate headquarters and luxury residential high rises that the firm has completed throughout its history reflect the high caliber of work it performs.

David Pinter is in close touch with new trends and dynamics that affect electrical contracting in New York. He is a former President of NECA’s New York City Chapter and currently serves as the Chapter’s Governor and Chief Labor Negotiator for the 2007 Local 3 IBEW labor contract negotiations.

“David brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to the ELECTRI Council and is an enthusiastic contributor to the Council’s work of monitoring Foundation projects,” says Russ Alessi, ELECTRI International President.

According to Pinter, the core competencies Zwicker Electric has used to fuel its growth are based on a simple premise: “to advance our business and our industry with state-of-the-art electrical installations.” In many ways the firm’s goals mirror the objectives of ELECTRI International to guide and advance the continued on page 3 electrical industry through its outstanding research and educational programs.

“We are excited to be part of the Foundation community,” says Pinter. “It is a stimulating environment that continues to challenge all of us as contractors to keep abreast of the latest advances in our industry and the way in which technology and best practices will affect our industry.”
